

Coltale says...

Regular attendance in early years helps children to:

- Be ready for school - acquire social and emotional skills, knowledge and attitudes necessary for success in life.
- Be ready to learn - early skills in literacy and mathematics have a strong impact on future educational attainment.

Talk to your child's school or early years setting to find out how they can support your child's attendance.

Help your child to succeed
in the early years, at school
and in adult life.

Before your SEND child starts at a new school or setting, contact the setting to discuss their needs and agree a plan of support.

If you need further advice or information contact:
EEYService@cityoflondon.gov.uk